May Be Put Into Effect On National Scale

CINCINNATI, O. (Spl.) — A broad, comprehensive plan leading to a practical communal organization for every city in the nation was under consideration by B'nai B'rith following its presentation here at the convention of District 2 by Louis Kranitz, of St. Joseph, Mo., a past president of the district.

Aimed at eliminating the inter-necine warfare, both locally and nationally, the Kranitz plan, if adopted, will be the first effort on a national scale to put into practice unifying organization.

Under the plan, a Jewish Educational Council will supervise every Jewish organization and activity in local communities. The Council will consist of delegates elected from constituent organizations, who will be asked to take part by the local lodges of B'nai B'rith.

The plan, the result of a year's work by B'nai B'rith leaders, headed by Mr. Kranitz, who is a prominent Missouri attorney, ignores ideological and theoretical arguments for the sake of practical unity. It will include education, both adult and child, anti-defamation work, fund raising, and vocational guidance for children.

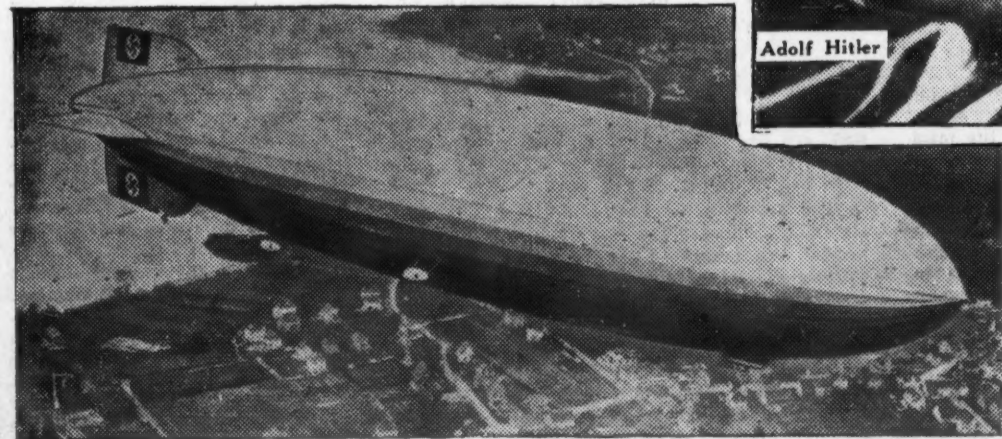

Proponents of the plan, which was referred to the General Committee of District 2 for further consideration, believe that with B'nai B'rith behind it Jewish communal organization will be revolutionized.

Hadassah Names Mrs. Jacob Weiss

Mrs. Jacob Weiss was re-elected president of the Indianapolis chapter of Hadassah at the luncheon-meeting held Wednesday afternoon in the Indianapolis Athletic Club.

Other officers chosen were Mrs. Irving Newman, first vice president; Mrs. L. L. Goodman, second vice president; Mrs. Lewis Levy, recording secretary; Mrs. Hyman Grande, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Stanley Levinson, financial secretary, and Mrs. Aaron Glick, treasurer. Directors elected for three years were Mrs. Ben Shalansky, Mrs. Daniel Stauber, Mrs. David Dobrowitz, Mrs. Max Nickbarg, and Mrs. Meyer Wild.

A delightful program of entertainment was presented. This was the final meeting of the season.

The Editor's Chair

Writing from national headquarters of Aleph Zadik Aleph, Junior Order of B'nai B'rith, an official of that enterprising organization says: "A large number of Anglo-Jewish newspapers is regularly delivered to this office and I must say that although your publication is somewhat dwarfed in size by most of the other publications, it certainly looms up as one of the very best. I think your little paper has a lot of personality and reflects a great deal of original and creative thinking."

Detroit Jewish Chronicle, please note.

Readers of this paper who wrote to P. O. Box 1092, Arcade Annex, Los Angeles, Cal., for the anti-Semitic pamphlet, "How to Destroy the Jews," can charge up their expenditure to profit and loss, since there is not and never was, such a pamphlet. The pamphlet affair, which was climaxed by a petition for a senatorial investigation, originated in the innocent hoax of an ambition would-be novelist to secure funds to finance the printing of a novel. As it was learned by a staff member of the California Jewish Voice, Los Angeles Anglo-Jewish publication, who made an investigation, the penurious writer thought of the hoax as a quick way of raising money to launch his artistic career. A total of 2,600 cards were sent out to a strictly-Jewish mailing list. The dimes came in, but so did the complaints; and so did, we understand, letters from Anti-Semites who wrote in that they were interested in a good, workable plan for the destruction of the Jews. If I could tell you how these cut-throat friends of the Jewish people are being taken care of, you would, if you have not already done so, immediately join B'nai B'rith, but then one of the cardinal principles of the functioning branch of the order which is doing this piece of work is no publicity, so you'll just have to take this chair's word for it.

Next week the results of our poll on the American Jewish Congress' World Jewish Congress. And a big black smudge of dirt on the new white linen suit of those readers who failed to vote.

Jewish Vacation Fund Organized

The child—your boy or girl—of you who read this paper will, through your past good fortune, hard work and diligence, spend some part of his vacation in the open. He will run and walk over green fields, swim in a cool, clear lake, play hard at baseball, tennis, and other sports, and sleep under welcome blankets through a soothing and invigorating night.

Your neighbor's child, who lives possibly on the other side of town, because his father was not as diligent and hard working and not favored by the Gods, or because his father and, perhaps his mother, too, is not living, will swelter in a sticky home and torrid streets, lie uneasily in a strength-sapping bed, and become accustomed to the choking heat he knows as summer. Now, if you are grateful for whatever it was that enabled you to remove your child from such an environment, and if you are the kind of a man whom your friends and acquaintances call in simple terms, "a good man," you will feel the urge to help out those children less fortunate than yours. Not only the heat-ridden child who pants in a blistering noonday sun, but others here and abroad, Jew and non-Jew, whose plight has elicited your sympathy.

Just now, however, this problem of summer vacations is quite important to your child, and more important to the wistful boy or girl who watches his schoolmates gloat, as children do, over his trip to the Catskills, or the Adirondacks, or the Blue Ridge Mountains, or the Rockies, or the Michigan lakes.

If your boy, God bless him, worries and vexes and irritates you until you consent to send him to the camp which Arnold Stern, or James Levy, attended last summer, think how important this camp business must be to him or her who watches this beneficent part of life pass by. And the paradoxical but perpetual aspect of the entire situation is that the child who needs camp most, is denied it; while he who sleeps in large, airy rooms in homes usually in the cooler, suburban parts of the city and who could, with very little effect on his health, forego camp, is able to go to the best camp.

Yet Jewish people throughout the United States have striven as they always do to enable the underprivileged child to spend at least a week in camp. In New York the Jewish Vacation Society operates with a minimum of expense to help hundreds of children spend at least part of the summer away from the city streets. In Louisville, Ky., and in many other communities, the B'nai B'rith through a Fresh Air Fund, devotes a portion of its energy to raising money to help the children of their community.

You readers, who, taking this editorial to heart, may wish to contribute to one of these funds, may forward checks to this paper, designating if you so desire, the city whose children you wish to help. You may send as small a sum as you care to, but send something. This paper will print a list of the contributions from week to week. If the certain community you choose has no established camp organization, arrangements will be made to expend your contribution in that city through the nearest rabbi or Community Center.

This paper prides itself on the close association it has built up with its readers. We feel that you readers will be happy to make whatever contribution you think is within your means so that this paper's Camp Fund may become an annual event and may be the means of giving a few days' enjoyment to a child in a position which you are thankful your own boy or girl has escaped.

Givers Should Not Use Split Drive Alibi

In the stand of this paper against the split of the 2-year-old United Jewish Appeal into the two drives now in progress nationally, of the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Palestine Appeal, it has been said that the success of the drives, has in part been undermined.

If the fight of this paper for a united campaign in 1937 has resulted in the withdrawal of contributions by any of its readers, it is guilty of a grievous wrongdoing. Upon the success of both drives rest not only the well-being of Jews throughout the world, but in too many cases, the difference between life and death, between starvation and hunger.

For many Jews in Poland death by their own hand, were it not disgraceful and against the dictates of their religion, would be preferable to a continuation of their present state. To be accurate, many Jews have already resorted to this surcease from worldly pains. And even those courageous enough to face a hopeless world can endure so much, can see their children waste away only so long, and can see their loved ones die of starvation and improper medical attention for just such and such a time.

If any readers refuse to donate to either of the campaigns, they do not deserve the name Jew. The only definite result of a split drive is a doubling of expenditures and overhead and the possible confusion among contributors, but the result of a lowered income from the drives means deprivation, death and starvation.

It is because of its desire to force a rapprochement next year, that this paper has been so vigorous in its denunciation of the split drives. But there are many evils worse than a split drive, and an unsuccessful drive is the greatest among these.

Readers of this paper, because of their knowledge of world Jewish affairs, should be in a much more beneficent mood towards drives than most Jews. It is hoped they will not use the alibi of a split drive to either curtail or withdraw their financial support from either the United Palestine Appeal or the drive of the Joint Distribution Committee.

Rabbi Assails Jewish Congress

Spiritual Leader of Boston Temple Terms World Jewish Congress Fantastic
Sees Danger to Jews in Foolish Plan

By RABBI B. D. COHON

An issue has been raised in the American Jewish community which requires close and clear consideration. As responsible Jewish men and women, we ought to understand the issue involved and make known our own positions.

The proposed World Jewish Congress aims to create a permanent political parliament that shall speak for all the Jews of the world; it is the aim of its proponents to make it an instrument of political action internationally in behalf of the Jews of the world, of whatever country.

Such a project is wild and fantastic. It is fraught with danger, if any one takes it seriously. It will jeopardize whatever security the Jewish people have, it will confuse and bewilder those friendly to the Jews, it will play into the hands of the vicious anti-Semites by giving them a perfect instrument to use against Jewry, it will create nothing but strife in every Jewish community. No wonder the leading Jewish organizations of the United States and Europe have flatly rejected it; no wonder the mature and responsible Jewish spokesmen have repudiated it.

The whole scheme is too fantastic to be considered seriously. There will be no World Jewish Congress in August, as anticipated by the backers of the movement. There will probably be a meeting of some kind, attended by a handful of self-appointed delegates, or appointed by a number of organizations here and there. But a congress representing world Jewry adequately and fairly at this time is preposterous. The tragedy of it is that the few noisy individuals assembled will storm every news agency of the world in the name of world Jewry.

We must resist this foolish, muddled plan. We must not have anything to do with it. We must not permit any organization to which we belong to be drawn into it.

The American Jewish Committee has issued a statement which every Jew ought to read and ponder and take to heart: "The committee believes that, animated by their love of country and their devotion to the highest conception of patriotism, American Jews will recognize the menace to their status inherent in the proposed World Congress and will declare their opposition to it. A firm and unequivocal refusal to have any part in such a movement, either directly or indirectly, may persuade those who are promoting it to withdraw from a proposed course of action which can achieve no helpful results, but which is freighted with embarrassment and even disaster to Jews everywhere."

Led Jewish Legion

LONDON (JTA) — How Field Marshal Viscount Edmund H. H. Allenby, warrior and British statesman, who died suddenly at his home last week at the age of seventy-five, led the British Expeditionary forces in the Palestine campaign of 1917 that broke the Turkish resistance is being recalled by Jewish Legionnaires all over the world.

Jewish soldiers remember him as the leader of the Jewish Legion—the first organized Jewish force since the dispersion. On many occasions Lord Allenby paid tribute to his Jewish battalions. At a dinner in New York in 1928 he said:

"I had the honor of commanding several Jewish battalions and I also had, before these Jewish battalions were raised, many Jewish soldiers under my command. Judas Maccabaeus could not have fought better than they did. Their courage and patriotism to the cause for which they fought was distinguished. They realized it was not only the cause of Judaism but of humanity."

Many streets have been named after the soldier-statesman in the Holy Land, including Allenby Square in the center of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

When Lord Allenby was appointed in 1917 to command the British forces in Palestine, he was little known. He had been educated at Haileyburg and at the Royal Military College at Sandhurst. He had seen service in Bechuanaland, Zululand, South Africa, and had successively commanded the cavalry, the Fifth Army Corps and the Third Army in the early stages of the World War.

He later recalled that after his campaign in Palestine, when he arrived in Jerusalem, Dr. Weizmann presented to him for the Jewish community a jeweled casket containing the Torah. It was the greatest honor, he said, ever conferred on him and he referred to it as the true emblem of unity of the cause for which the Allies had fought.

At the opening of the Hebrew University, Lord Allenby gave his recollections of Palestine, saying in 1918 he had been given a tea on a sandhill at Tel Aviv, and in 1925 he returned to find a great thoroughfare, Allenby Street, in the place of a sand dune.

Recalling that he had presided at the laying of the foundation stone for the university in 1918, Lord Allenby observed that it was an experience given to very few to see a work begun in war consummated in peace.

"It is nearly eight years, he said, 'since a swirling eddy in the strong tide of war threw me onto the coast of Egypt, and I found myself in command of the army destined for Palestine. I had no experience of the East, but the task in view was one which had been unsuccessfully attempted by many armies; the goal, however, was one which has throughout the ages been most alluring—Jerusalem—and there was not a man in my force who was unwilling to risk all in the enterprise. We broke the lines and we won Jerusalem.'"

"In those days," he continued, "I knew little or nothing of Zionism, and if I thought of it at all regarded it as a phantasm and a theory. But I soon came into close touch with it. Dr. Weizmann came out not long after the surrender of the Holy City and did me the honor of staying with me for a time at my headquarters. His visit was a revelation to me of faith in a cause and never had I seen such

ORGANIZE NATION-WIDE CAMP VACATION FUND

Ask Readers Contribute

A fund to send underprivileged children to camps throughout the United States will be raised by this paper, the editors decided after consultation with leaders of Jewish Welfare Funds throughout the United States.

Patterned after similar campaigns conducted annually by large publications, the Camp Fund will be raised by voluntary contributions from readers. Every cent of the money donated will be used to send worthy Jewish children to camp for at least a one-week vacation.

A novel feature of the Camp Fund will be the contributor's privilege of designating in which city his donations shall be expended. As a result, if readers in Detroit donate a total of $75, the Jewish Welfare Bureau in that city will be sent the money to be used in giving vacations to Jewish children there.

Names of all contributors will be printed weekly in this paper, unless otherwise requested.

In announcing the establishment of the fund which will be made an annual event, the editors of this paper said: "Many needy children will be afforded an opportunity to

After that Lord Allenby was a great supporter of Palestine. In 1928, when the Wailing Wall incident took place in Jerusalem, he issued a statement charging the police with having acted tactlessly. Again, after the disorders of August, 1929, he declared in a speech in the House of Lords that "recent events in Palestine have shown the danger of optimism leading to the lessening of safeguards."

Save Shuls Is Command

BERLIN (Spl.)—Instructions to Jewish communities throughout the Reich to do everything in their power to prevent the selling of synagogues and property held by congregations in localities where the Jewish population is decreasing have been issued by the Federation of Jewish Communities of Prussia.

The instructions, which form an apt commentary on present conditions in the Reich, state:

"It has come to our attention that a number of Jewish communities have, during recent months, decided to sell the real estate holdings of their synagogues because of the lack of a 'minyan' in their communities and also because of financial and other reasons.

"We advise all those communities which are associated with this body to communicate with us first in such cases. It must be understood that the synagogues must be maintained as long as possible and even under sacrifices. Only when all possibilities are exhausted is the question of selling the synagogues to be raised."

CARD PARTY SET

The Workman's Circle, Branch 175, will hold a card party on May 25, afternoon and evening, at 1218 South Meridian Street. Beautiful door and table prizes will be awarded. Admission will be 25c. The entire community is invited.

The instructions advise that in localities where there are not the requisite ten Jews for synagogue services, the synagogues be converted to other useful purposes.

"Under no circumstances, however," the instructions state, "should a synagogue be leased for profane purposes."

AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE OPPOSES CONGRESS

Rabbi Lazaron, Of Baltimore, Accepts Pulpit In Chicago

Reaffirms Position

NEW YORK (Spl.)—A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Jewish Committee, meeting here, reaffirmed the committee's opposition to the World Jewish Congress and voted not to participate.

Although the number attending the meeting was not made public, there are fifty members of the executive committee, and only one dissenting vote was recorded.

Announcement of the meeting said that the resolution confirmed the position previously taken by the American Jewish Committee and unanimously supported by delegates to the annual meeting of the committee last year.

The move by the American Jewish Committee brings into opposition against the World Jewish Congress the same forces which were able to cause postponement in 1934. Last week B'nai B'rith voted not to take part in the Congress.

Bridge and bingo followed.

N. Sokolow Succumbs

LONDON (Spl.)—A great name was removed from contemporary Jewish history with the sudden death here of Nahum Sokolow, president from 1931 to 1935 of the World Zionist Organization, and one of the greatest modern Jews.

Dr. Sokolow was 74 years old.

Complaining of illness for the past two weeks, Dr. Sokolow had breakfast with his family Sunday. In the afternoon he suffered a heart attack and died at 6:15 p. m. with his twin daughters at his bedside.

Scholar, journalist and Zionist, Nahum Sokolow devoted his life to the Jewish people. He was always a calm advisor and many times reconciled opposing differences which threatened to disrupt the Zionist movement. He attended the first Basle Zionist Convention in 1897.

Before ascending to the presidency of the Zionist movement in 1931, Dr. Sokolow had been chairman of the Zionist Executive and an executive member of the Jewish Agency. He visited the United States on two occasions, the last in the winter of 1931-32.

Segal President Of Chi Gamma Phi

Manual Segal was re-elected president of the Chi Gamma Phi fraternity at the annual dinner dance in the Indianapolis Athletic Club Sunday night. Other officers chosen were Ed Rosenberg, vice president; David Falender, secretary-treasurer, and Max Shalansky, corresponding secretary.

A delightful floor show was presented.

Refuse Trip To Educator

NEW YORK (JTA)—The Board of Education last week struck a blow at Nazism when it refused a two-month leave of absence to Theodor Huebner, assistant director of foreign languages, on which he was to have studied foreign language instruction in the countries of Central Europe. Mr. Huebner was to have made the trip as member of a commission sponsored by the Carl Schurz Foundation.

The board voted four to three against granting the leave, which had been previously recommended by the Board of Superintendents.

James Marshall, newly-named vice president of the board, in a speech prior to the vote denounced the Nazi regime, stating that at this time "there is nothing in the teaching methods of Ger-
